This half-day program explores hot legal, litigation, and policy developments pertinent to the agricultural chemical community and features three panels. The first panel focuses on how EPA policy is conceived and developed in concert with the Agency counsel's office, as seen through the lens of "been there, done that" former EPA general counsels. The second panel focuses on current Agency actions regarding FIFRA/FQPA, TSCA, and related chemical enforcement initiatives. A third panel will address current hot topics -- legislative priorities, key Supreme Court decisions, and related developments.

For people attending in person, a buffet lunch will be served.

Luncheon remarks will be provided by John C. Cruden, President, Environmental Law Institute, and former Deputy Assistant Attorney General, Environment and Natural Resources Division, U.S. Department of Justice.
